

Alpha Sigma Nu Initiates "Who's Who" Names Seven New Members Seventeen Seniors

Next Tuesday at 5:30 p.m. in the faculty lounge of the Andrew White Center in a ceremony which is to be presided over by Fr. Vincent J. Beatty, S.J., seven new members will be initiated into the Loyola Chapter of Alpha Sigma Nu, the National Jesuit Honor Fraternity. Four juniors and three seniors have been selected for initiation.

The three seniors are: Peter Genovese III, an English major; James P. Burns, a chemistry major and William Jenkins, a history major. The four juniors are: Charles Lancelotta, a pre-med major; James Kane, a pre-med major; C. Paul Montgomery, a physics major; and Gerard Dotterweich, a history major.

Present Members

The fraternity's president is Thomas J. Kenny, a history major. Other veteran members include Edward J. Slawski, a political science major; Thomas J. Cosgrove, a physics major; and Martin J. Snyder, a classics major. Fr. Joseph D'In-villiers is the present moderator.

Alpha Sigma Nu is one of the four honorary fraternities on campus and its members have the honor and distinction of being a selected few who meet the stringent requirements of three basic standards: scholarship, service, and loyalty.

The initiation at which the new members will receive their keys and certificates, will be followed by a banquet at which several alumni of the fraternity will be present.

ASN MEMBERS: Loyola's veteran Alpha Sigma Nu members are noted for scholarship and loyalty to their school and its ideals.

SPOT NEWS

Mixer News

St. Agnes School of Nursing at Caton and Wilkins Avenue will present a mixer tonight from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Music will be provided by the J-Birds. The admission charge is $.75.

Students of Mercy Hospital are having a mixer tonight from 8:30 p.m. to 12 p.m. in the nurses' recreation room.

Mill Ball

Tomorrow night, Loyola College Military Science Department will present the Military Ball from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Music will be provided by Morgan Baer Orchestra. Tickets are $5.00 per couple.

Debating

The Bellarmine Debating Society engaged in its first competition of the season Saturday Nov. 10, against the University of Baltimore on the varsity level. The inexperienced Loyola teams captured both practice debates held. Loyola's next opponent is Johns Hopkins.

Folk Music

The Kymry Club of Notre Dame College will present a folk music festival tonight from 8:30 to 12 a.m. in LeClerc Hall. The admission is $1.00 per person.

Loyola Night Features Lampoons And Dance

The Loyola College Dramatic Society will present next Wednesday, November 21, the twenty-fourth annual Loyola Nite in Cohn Hall at 8:30 p.m. The program consists of a two hour variety show followed by an orchestra dance at 10:30 with Brayden Ridenour and "The Melodeons Orchestra".

Loyola night is one night in which the entire student body has a chance to display its talent. The evening entertainment consist of satirical skits, impersonations, and pantomines. The theme is humor and the student can make light of anything.

Program Moderator

This year's moderator is Fr. Jenemenn, S.J. The Dramatic Society's moderator will moderate the presentation, and this year's program should prove even more delightful than in previous years.

Jim (Stogie) Clark, the somewhat locally renowned character-actor and comedian, will be this year's Master of Ceremonies. Last year's performance won Jim much acclaim.

Talent Sprouts

Tryouts will be held on Monday and Tuesday night, November 19 and 20, in Cohn Hall beginning at 7:30 p.m. Four censors made up of two faculty members and two students in the Dramatic Society will judge those which are good enough to participate. On account of the Glee Club's new director, they will not perform this

A.E.C. Historian To Lecture Here On November 28

On Wednesday, November 28, at 11 a.m., in Xavier Lounge, the Gorman Lecture Series will present Richard G. Hewlett, Chief Historian of the Atomic Energy Commission, who will lecture on "Reflections On The Early History of Atomic Energy In The United States."

School History

Dr. Hewlett received his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees in American History at Chicago University, and wrote his doctoral dissertation on the political career of Lewis Cass. He served as a member of United States Delegation to the Second Atomic Energy Conference in Switzerland in 1958.

Dr. Hewlett began the first volume of the A.E.C. history in 1958. The book is co-authored by Oscar E. Anderson.

The lecture is open to everyone.

For the first time in the history of Loyola College seventeen seniors have been named as Loyola's representatives in "Who's Who Among Students In American Universities And Colleges." This nation-wide honor includes listing in the organization's annual directory which is distributed among educational and commercial institutions throughout the country. Selections for the publication are made on the basis of scholastic achievement, extra-curricular participation, and leadership qualities.

Selected Students

The students elected are Robert E. Bell, Charles Blair, Jr., Paul Caruso, Jr., James F. Collins, Thomas J. Cosgrove, William T. Define, Peter Genovese, Jr., William Jenkins, Jr., John Kogler, Jr., R. Henry McGraw, Gerald J. Peters, Michael C. Rohm, Edward Slawski, Jr., Martin D. Snyder, and Ronald W. Yakaitis.

Robert Bell is a history major and the business Manager of "The Greyhound." Duck Blair, an accounting major, is a member of the Student Council and president of the A.S.O. Jim Burns, a chemistry major, is Features Co-Editor of "The Greyhound" and Editor of the yearbook.

Paul Caruso, is an engineering-physics major, and Jim Collins is a pre-med major. Tom Cosgrove, a physics major, in addition to being a Student Council member is the president of the Math and Physics Clubs.

William Define is a political science major. Pete Genovese, an English major, is the president of L.I.T. and Editor-in-chief of "The Greyhound." A political science major, Bill Jenkins is a member of the track team.

Tom Kenny, a senior history major is the president of Alpha Sigma Nu and Eta Sigma Phi and the Sport's Editor of "The Greyhound." John Kogler is a baseball and soccer star who is a business administration major.

Hank McGraw, an English major, is vice president of L.I.T. and a track star. Jerry Peters, a physics major, is the president of the Glee Club. Mike Rohm, a physics major, is president of the senior class.

President of the History Academy and Secretary-general of the I.R.C., Ed Slawski is a political science major. Marty Snyder, a classics major, is the president of the Student Body. Ron Yakaitis, a pre-med major, is president of the Dramatic Society.

"Who's Who" has two important purposes. First, it is an honor to the student of outstanding accomplishment a reference volume of authoritative information on the large body of American College students, who are leaders.

Senior Achievement

Last week's student council meeting found the council representatives engaged in a bitter discussion regarding the re-institution of a practice which had been discontinued by the college for several years; namely, the administration of comprehensive examinations to senior-classmen. Since the issue is certain to cause much discussion in future months, The Greyhound feels that the student body at Loyola should be informed as to its ramifications. After all, it will affect him.

The comprehensive examinations which are now being discussed are not fully inclusive. In other words, they will not cover the complete range of courses which have been given during the student's four year stay at college. Instead, the present measure calls for the exams to be given on assigned reading material drawn from areas in the student's major course which have not been covered adequately during his tenure.

One question which many students will want answered is: What good will the comprehensive exams accomplish? Of the several answers available, the most acceptable seems to be that such exams will help to give the student a perspective from which to view his knowledge and an instrument for organizing it and making it more meaningful. This should aid him immeasurably in preparing not only for his future occupation but also, in such well-known achievement tests as the Graduate Record Exams.

ALPHA SIGMA NU'S

Alpha Sigma Nu wishes this week to call your attention to another area in which Loyola College Graduates have distinguished themselves. This is the field of medicine. Loyola numbers 218 medical doctors among its 4,000 graduates since 1852 (a percentage of over 5%), and this does not include the many recent baccalaureate now pursuing their training in medical schools across the country. Some of the more eminent members of the medical profession who look back on Loyola as their alma mater are Dr. Frank Ayd, '42, Dr. John Ozazewski, '40, Dr. Rollins Hanlon, '34, and Dr. Frederick Ruzicka, '12, in whose name Ruzicka Hall has been dedicated.

Dr. Frank Ayd is an outstanding psychiatrist who is the Chief of Psychiatry at Franklin Square Hospital. He is the author of over 80 articles on psychiatry. Just last summer Dr. Ayd was awarded an international prize in Rome for his outstanding work in his field. Dr.

Hanlon is the Director of the Department of Surgery at St. Louis University. He is also a professor in that department and has published many works on thoracic and cardiovascular surgery. Dr. Ozazewski was the Director of the Department of Ophthalmology at the University of Maryland Medical School from 1956 to 1959.

These and many other physicians, some of whom you may know personally, have walked the hall of Loyola College either on Calvert St. or here at Evergreen. They are living examples of the excellence of Loyola throughout her history. She is not a school to be just tolerated, but one of which each of her students can be sincerely proud. And she is still carrying on her great traditions today. Who knows maybe the fellow sitting next to you in class today will distinguish himself just as or even more so than these distinguished alumni mentioned above.

THE REVIEWING STAND

The Manchurian Candidate, the current attraction at the New Theatre, contains and combines the bite and farce of a satire, the immediacy of serious drama, the suspense of a first-rate thriller, all into the frame of the incredulous plot of a science fiction fantasy. The sum total is one fine film.

As the movie opens, the scene is Korea, 1952. Sergeant Raymond Shaw (Lawrence Harvey) brusquely rouses his squad from a local Korean style cabaret for patrol duty; while this does not establish Shaw as a hateful character, it does lend him an air of unlovableness. On the patrol they are betrayed by their Korean scout and captured silently and efficiently by Russian troops, who whisk them off in helicopters.

The next scene shows a disgruntled Shaw disembarking from a plane into a tumultuous hero's airport welcome, to be greeted by his domineering mother (Angela Lansbury) and idiotic opportunistic senator step-father (Paul Gregory), both of whom he loaths. It seems Shaw has won the Congressional Medal of Honor for a heroic action by which he saved 9 of the 11 members of his squad and routed an entire company of the enemy.

So what happened? That's what Benjamin Marco (Frank Sinatra) would like to know. His former lieutenant, now a Major in the Army Intelligence Corps, is plagued by a bizarre dream in which he finds himself and the whole squad (including the two dead members) in a New Jersey hotel lobby listening lethargically to a women's club lecturer discuss Hydrangeas. The lobby changes into a lecture pit with officious-looking Russians and Chinese looking down upon them. The pedantic lady lecturer is transformed into a villainously jovial Chinese Psychologist who is discoursing on brainwashing. Major Marco finally persuades his superiors that his dreams are more than signs of insanity, and obtains permission to shadow Shaw. Gradually he uncovers the whole grisly business in which Solitaire and the Queen of Diamonds act as mesmerizing agents of the "Manchurian Candidate."

The film, in general, moves at an anxious pace. John Frankenheimer, who directs, has some golden moments with the camera, particularly in his pleasingly peculiar use of perspective shots.

Some kind words must be said for the cast. Lawrence Harvey as the strange and self-centered yet tragically--victimized Shaw is magnificent, underplaying the role to perfection. Angela Lansbury is terrific and terrifying as a she-devil of a mother and wife. Paul Gregory brings over the bombastic boorishness of his McCarthyist character gratifying well. Less can be said for Frank Sinatra and Janet Leigh, except that he--sweating, shaking and stalking as the shook-up major--is "competent," and that she seems to be unexplicably thrown in for the fun of it.

In short, while not a great film, The Manchurian Candidate is a good one.

Off The Record

The one thing made apparent at John Gardecki's recital last Saturday night was that one wishes John had more time to devote to his art. His program was planned with taste and interest, having a variety of pieces arranged so to display varying facets of execution on the piano. The accoustical results effected by placing the piano in the auditorium, and in a spot producing the best resonance in the hall, displayed John's perception in how to establish favorable rapport between himself and his audience.

The major work of the first half of the program, and of the entire evening was the Schumann Symphonic Etudes. There are thirteen of these etudes, each an interesting variant on a theme, all requiring a highly accomplished technique and studied interpretation. The structure of this score is challenging and an artist must arm himself well for its execution. There was some neglect of fine details noted in the slower passages, but there seemed to be more smoothness in the difficult runs and some deftness in the trills. John's touch is heavy and masculine, but for the most part, controlled, and there is only a little finesse wanting.

Keyboard Master

The Chopin during the second half of the program proved the most rewarding insofar as John's execution was concerned. Such standards as the "Revolutionary" and A Flat Polonaises went over very well and it appeared that John was much more familiar with these. There were two Scriabines done, one of which afforded us a display of John's expansion ability as he deftly covered notes often separated by much distance along the keyboard.

The first selection was an original composition by Mr. Otto Ortmann, John's teacher. This was unfamiliar but interesting, and John's reading appeared satisfactory.

Brahms and Debussy, the other composers represented, were interpreted with the same display of potential greatness. Generally, the entire evening was a rewarding one.

We all hope and pray that John will be allowed someday to "give his all" to music and to be prepared for what we shall see--a great, brilliant, and sincere artist.

Booters Capture Northern Division

Deadlock With Mounties Clinches Soccer Crown

The Loyola Greyhounds wrapped up the Northern Division soccer title last Tuesday with a 1 to 1 tie against Mt. St. Mary's. This game against the Mountaineers brought their season total to 9 wins and 2 ties which was good enough to give them the championship. However, on Thursday, the Hounds lost their chance for an undefeated season with a 1 to 0 setback at the hands of the Towson State Tigers. In the Mt. St. Mary's game neither team was able to mount a good offense and it appeared that it might be a scoreless game until Denny Grabowski booted in a loose ball which was out in front of the Mountie goal for his seventeenth goal of the season late in the 2nd quarter. The score remained the same until the Mount fullback hit the nets with a shot from the sidelines late in the 4th quarter and the regulation game ended that way. The Hound booters took continuous shots at the Mount goal but were unable to score.

The only thing that can be said about the Towson State loss is that the Hounds did not get the breaks. For the second game in a row they booted many sure shots only to have them stopped by the Tiger defense.

Yesterday the Hounds met Lynchburg, the Southern division winner, for the Mason Dixon championship. A win would bring back the soccer title to Evergreen after a 14-year absence. If the Hounds should win the crown, credit should be given not only to the team but to coach Lefty Reitz who has done a fine but unheralded job.

This year's team did a far better job than anyone might have expected of their winning last year's record. Moreover, they played under considerable pressure, having gone undefeated until so late in the season.

Intramurals

The Intramural Football League action last week centered completely around the Hamilton Rec as the Rec participated in both games which were scheduled.

The first game saw the Rec beat the Flores by a greater number of penetrations. The score was 13-13, and all of the Rec scoring was done on passes to Joe Enoch from Ruskinko and Ray. The Kernan-Coyle combination was effective for the Flores, but they could not prevent the Flores second defeat.

The second game also ended in a tie, but there was a reversal as the Rec lost to the 1.5's, who gained a larger number of first downs. Defense was an important factor as neither team scored.

This loss also eliminated the Rec and left only 2 teams in contention for the championship, the 1.5's and the undefeated Debits, both senior teams.

Bowling News

Latest results from the Intramural bowling league show the Bombers, a senior team, at the top of the standings with a 8-1 record. The Foulone-5 is second.

Loyola booter Denny Grabowski scrambles to intercept a pass during last week's Towson tilt. The "Teachers" went on to upset the "Hounds" by a 1-0 score.

Teacher Harriers Win; M-D Tourney Tomorrow

Last Saturday afternoon, the annual Loyola Invitational Cross-country Meet was won by Towson State Teachers College. The Teachers posted a winning total of 32 points as opposed to runnerup Mt. St. Mary's 39 points. American U.'s squad took third place, defending champ Gallaudet was fourth and the host Hounds copped fifth.

Individual honors went to Towson's star Freshman, Jeff Glover. Jeff, in his first year of college competition, is undefeated and has set quite a few course records in his travels.

His time on Saturday, 16:16, although not a record, was outstanding considering the slippery footing on the Loyola course. Following closely behind his teammate in second place was the Teacher's John Murphy. John McKee of Mt. St. Mary's placed third. The first finisher for Loyola was Bill Jenkins who posted a fine time of 17:40 in taking the twelfth position.

Season Ends

Tomorrow will mark the end of the Hound Harrier's season as they compete in the Mason-Dixon Cross-country Tournament to be held this year in Bridgewater, Virginia. The Hounds will go into the tourney with a 2-4 log, not bad considering the manpower lack which has hampered the squad throughout the year.

On the basis of its showing last Saturday, the Towson team appears to be the top contender for the M-D crown.

However, the added pressure which the Mason Dixon tourney places on the runners, when added to other factors, could call for a surprise outcome. Only time will tell.

The Riflemen

Loyola's ROTC Rifle team travels to Georgetown to fire its third match of the season. Last year Loyola topped Georgetown 1348-1343, and proceeded to win the Conference Championship. This year, with most of the members of last year's winning squad, Loyola has a very good chance to take another title. So far, Western Maryland and Dickinson have fallen before the sharpshooting eye of Loyola's riflemen, and each member is determined that Georgetown will suffer the same fate. If the Hounds can take this match, they will be well on their way to another good year.

Cage and Swim Openers Soon

On Friday night, November 12, the Hound cagers encountered the University of Delaware on the latter's court in the first formal scrimmage. The "Blue Hens," featuring one of the tallest teams in the East, appeared to be avenging a surprisingly poor showing in last year's Loyola Invitational tournament as they dominated both backboards in the long 2½ hour tilt. But a tight Hound defense forced sloppy ball handling by Delaware and Loyola was able to convert loose balls into field goals by means of the fast break on many occasions. The diversified Hound attack did a good job of confusing the "Hen" defense and provided other scoring plays for the Hounds. All in all, the Greyhounds handled themselves admirably in the scrimmage and gave positive indication that their lack of height need not be woeful.

Swimming

Last Tuesday night, the annual Green and Gray meet was held and in it a freshman-sophomore team competed against a junior-senior team. For reasons of security, the results of this contest will not be published.

This meet marked the beginning of regular competition for the Hound mermen who will also meet Dickinson College tomorrow in another unscheduled, closed meet. The regular competitive season begins on December 4 when Loyola will play host to Shepard College from Shepherdstown, West Virginia.

The hard work put forth by the team, plus the excellent turnout, promises a highly spirited and successful season.

GREYHOUND SPORTS

by Tom Kenney

The Loyola Fall sports schedule is rapidly drawing to a close. The Hound Booters finished their season yesterday against Lynchburg and the Harriers finish up tomorrow at Bridgewater. Very shortly the winter lineup of Basketball, Swimming and Wrestling will take the spotlight.

Successful Last Year

Last season, Loyola's winter sports were extremely successful. The Hound Cagers posted a 9-3 conference log and won the Invitational Tournament. Loyola's Swimmers copped their second consecutive conference title. On the mat, the Hound grapplers won the M-D northern division title and placed second in the tournament to powerful B.U.

Outlook Bright

This year's prospects look to be just as good if not better than last season. The Cagers, man for man, show definite improvement. They should provide their followers with many exciting moments. The Hound Swim team never seems to have a bad year and this year does not appear to be an exception to the rule. Most of last season's squad has returned and they will be supplemented by some good freshman prospects. Loyola's Matmen suffered two losses via graduation but still have the nucleus of a fine team returning.

BLOOD & GUTS: Hound harrier Denny Voith strains to finish a recent meet.
